Understanding User Perception Towards Phishing Webpage

You are being asked to participate in a voluntary research study. The purpose of this study is to understand human's ability to identify phishing webpage. Participating in this study will involve (1) reading a brief introduction and informed consent; (2) completing a survey where you will be expected to look at various web screenshots and judge their legitimacy. Then explain why you selected the option. Your participation will last about 15 minutes.

Risks and Benefits

There are no risks beyond those in everyday life related to participating in this research. However, if you don't feel comfortable looking at screenshots of commonplace web pages, you should not participate. Your participation will be invaluable to this research, the results of which can provide a deeper understanding of human ability to identify phishing webpage and help researchers to develop tools to detect phishing webpages. Survey Procedure

This is a classification task. Each image is a single website screenshot. Phishing websites steal sensitive information such as login credentials, financial information, or personal information. Phishing sites may look similar to the legitimate websites which makes it difficult to distinguish them. You will be asked to rate the legitimacy of webpages, and then you should explain why you made that choice.

How do you rate the legitimacy of this webpage (from 1 to 6, 1 is "phishing" and 6 is "legitimate")?

1 (definitely phishing)

2 (very probably phishing)

3 (probably phishing, but not sure)

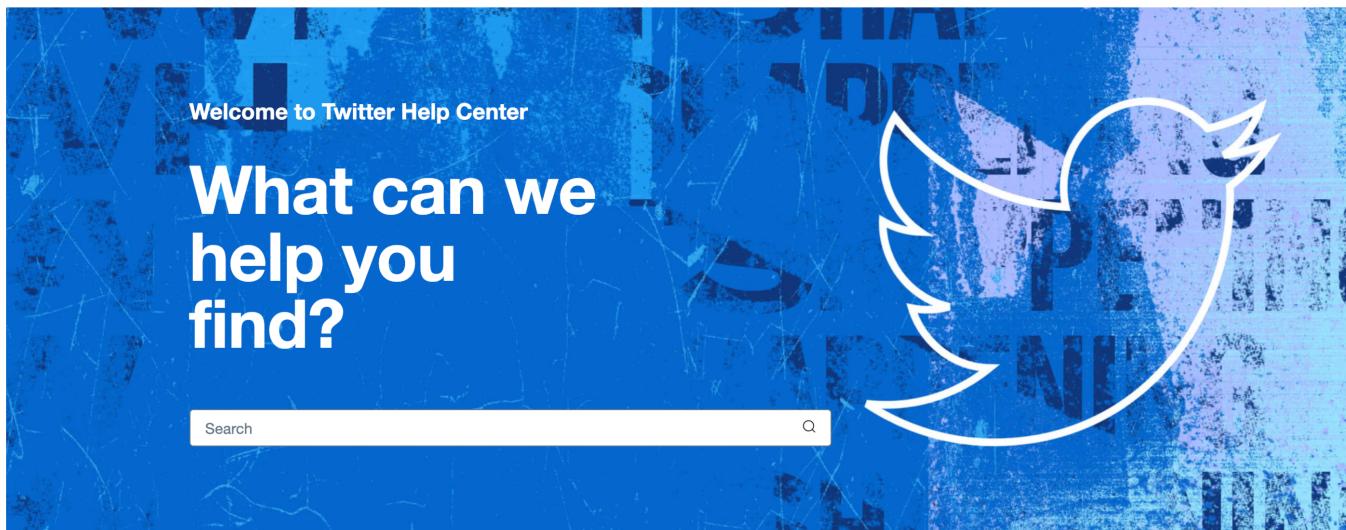

4 (probably legitimate, but not sure)

5 (very probably legitimate)

6 (definitely legitimate)

What specific components/indicators on the webpage have influenced your choice? (Please shorten your explanation to one sentence or several keywords.)
